

Martha W. and Frank Brown's Mission:

In 1946, the prayer I made as a 13-year old girl was answered and we were called to preside over the Central States Mission. It would take a good sized book to tell all the interesting things about our mission and the joy of knowing and working with nearly 400 fine missionaries. We knew Brother James A. Cullimore and slept and ate in his home. We traveled for two or three weeks at a time with Apostle Moyle and his wife and other church authorities. It was all very wonderful.

After three and one half years of wonderful missionary life we were released and bought a nice home in Salt Lake City, and lived for our family.

May W. and Herbert Berry's Mission

Herbert was called to be a counselor to President Frank Brown. One of the assignments the Berrys had on their mission was that they were fundraisers to help build the chapels to meet the growth of the church in the Central States Mission. They would put together Variety Shows, and ward members would sell tickets to the community. These events were very successful, and May would often coax professional entertainers to perform in the programs.
